Homes and jobs plan for land at riverside

MORE than 80 acres of brownfield land in Northampton is to be bought by West Northamptonshire Development Corporation using its compulsory purchase powers for the first time.

Board members of the Government-backed organisation this week agreed to make a compulsory purchase order to bring the land, surrounding the Avon headquarters, under its control.

WNDC hopes a compulsory purchase will allow it to move forward with plans to regenerate the site, which stretches from Bedford Road to Ransome Road and includes the site of the former Nunn Mills power station.

Talks between the landowners, which include Avon, Persimmon Homes and Northampton Borough Council, had been ongoing for several years but failed to reach an agreement.

Chief executive Peter Mawson said: "Avon Nunn's Mill has been at the forefront of our plans for the regeneration of Northampton waterside and the town centre generally. It's a very significant site."

Chairman John Markham added: "We have to move this forward and this is the only way we can do this reasonably."

Board members also agreed to pay compensation to the current landowners following the sale.

A proposed timescale would see the WNDC, founded in 2004 to promote growth and regeneration in the region, taking official possession of the site by March 2013.

Director of regeneration, Chris Garden, said after the meeting: "There has been long standing plans for that site. I think the potential of it in terms of new jobs, new houses and a new waterside environment is tremendous."

Derelict land near Avon's headquarters in Northampton will be bought and developed

Advertise ... on a fire engine

BUSINESSES could be given the chance to buy advertising space on the side of fire engines as cash-strapped Northamptonshire County Council searches for new ways to make money.

As part of its annual budget plans, the council said it hoped to make money over the coming year by "exploiting opportunities for sponsorship of vehicles and stations" in the county's fire service.

Leader of the council, Councillor Jim Harker said he would not rule out selling advertisements on the side of fire engines.

He said: "It's certainly worth asking whether local businesses or other interested people would be prepared to put some money into maintaining fire provision."

The council needs to save £28 million over the next year because of a cut in the money it get from the Government.

Mary 'wrong on town centre'

TOWN centre traders have backed a buoyant future for Northampton town centre despite television celebrity Mary Portas claiming some city centres were now "dead".

In a report commissioned by the Government, the TV retail expert said this week it was too late to save every high street.

But traders in Northampton town centre said positive strides had already been made by the Business Improvement District (BID) as well as Northampton Borough Council.

Tove Action Group plans to fight a proposal to put 16 turbines near Easton Neston

Bid for wind turbines near stately home

CAMPAIGNERS are preparing to fight another wind farm bid in the south of the county which could blot the landscape close to a stately home.

The Tove Action Group was formed earlier this year after learning Spanish wind farm developer Gamesa was preparing an application for 16 wind turbines in countryside along the Tove Valley Way, which runs east of Towcester between Shutlanger, Stoke Bruerne, Stoke Park, Alderton and Grafton Regis.

But the proposal, known as Tove Energy Park, has still not been submitted to South Northamptonshire Council following an informal public consultation this autumn in Stoke Bruerne, Paulerspury and Towcester, as well as meetings with Alderton and Paulerspury Parish Councils.

A spokeswoman for South Northamptonshire Council said the developer had sought the advice of the planning officers and confidential discussions had taken place about the proposal, as is usual in the pre-application stages of the process.

The wind farm would run close to a number of local villages, as well as the rural Towcester Racecourse and 18th Century country house, Easton Neston. The property was bought for £15million six years ago by the Russian fashion magnate, Leon Max.

Mr Max told the Daily Mail: "It would be inconceivable in America to start putting up huge wind turbines next to, say, Thomas Jefferson's Monticello, yet in Britain it is now Government policy to have almost no protection for some of the finest houses in the land, just to please Brussels bureaucrats."

Alderman title for three ex-councillors

THREE former members of Northampton Borough Council will become the town's latest 'honorary aldermen'.

Members of the council this week agreed that Donald Edwards, Arthur McCutcheon and Barry Massey would be given the honorary position.

The title, which has no powers attached to it, is given to former councillors who have served at the Guildhall for more than 20 years.

Welcoming the nomination of former Conservative borough councillor Mr Edwards, current Councillor Matt Golby (Con,

New Duston) said: "Everybody respects Don and he was very kind to me when I first became a councillor."

Paying tribute to Labour stalwart Mr McCutcheon, Councillor Lee Mason (Lab, Brookside) added: "I'm delighted to nominate Arthur for this recognition."

Discussing former Conservative Councillor Mr Massey's nomination, Councillor Phil Larratt (Con, East Hunsbury) added: "He's quite a character and it gives me great pleasure to propose that he becomes an alderman."

The evening will begin at 7pm. Proceeds will go to Northamptonshire Association for the Blind. Booking is essential by calling Northampton 719193.

Entertain at Xmas fair

ENTERTAINERS, including singers, musicians, dancers, actors and jugglers, are wanted to perform at a Christmas fair in Brackley. The Courtyard Christmas Fayre takes place in the Market House Courtyard in the town from 10am until 4pm on Saturday, December 17, and performance slots are available throughout that time. Interested parties can enquire at the Courtyard Coffee House or Rowans Gallery. Craftmakers and artists are also wanted to hold stalls at the fair. Pitches cost £5 each. To book email Sally at rowansgallery@uwclub.net or call 01280 840979.

No decision until 2012

JUSTINE Greening, the Secretary of State for Transport, has confirmed the decision on the controversial HS2 application will be delayed until 'early next year'. The Government was due to announce the fate of the high-speed rail line between London and Birmingham by the end of December. In a statement the minister said she needed more time to carefully consider the application, after only taking up office in October, following former minister Philip Hammond's move to Defence Secretary. If approved the line would carve through the South Northamptonshire countryside.

Supermarket gives hospital special cot

A COT that allows grieving mums and dads to spend more time with their baby in the hours after it dies has been donated to Northampton General Hospital.

The Sainsbury's supermarket in the Grosvenor Centre donated the cold cot to NGH's Sturtridge ward, a labour ward, after one of their staff lost their baby.

It will be used by bereaved parents in a refurbished bereavement suite close to the ward where mums and dads can sit in peace after the devastating loss of their child.

Police launch campaign on thefts of metal

POLICE are to lead a cross-county crackdown on the trade of stolen lead and copper after admitting Northampton had seen a significant increase in the number of metal thefts.

Detectives revealed metal thefts have risen by 13 per cent this year, with more than 100 extra incidents recorded by officers.

Almost 40 per cent of the county's metal thefts have occurred in Northampton itself, with thieves principally targeting copper and lead.

Thieves are progressively targeting railway buffers, stripping empty properties of copper pipes and they have also dug up phone cables, often completely cutting off rural areas.

At the weekend two lengths of copper cabling were stolen from an electrical cupboard, cutting off hundreds of residents and businesses in Great Houghton, Brafield-on-the-Green, Denton and Cogenhoe.

Metal thieves have also hacked catalytic converters from lorries and 4x4 vehicles in the county to then strip them of metals, while church roofs have also been stripped of lead.

Assistant Chief Constable of Northamptonshire Police, Martin Jelley, said the force was prepared to target thieves and scrap metal dealers who buy the stolen metals.

He told a meeting of Northamptonshire Police Authority: "There is significant concern both locally and nationally about metal thefts.

"Metal thefts account for 1.7 per cent of all recorded crime and clearly there has been a problem over the last two or three years, particularly with the price of metal going up."

He said the police were launching Operation Silver Fox to make the county "as hostile as possible" to scrap metal thieves and the people who buy their ill-gotten gains.

Mr Jelley said: "The scrap metal dealers who don't play by the rules can expect to be dealt with by way of a firm hand.

"We are also working with other neighbouring forces, because if there is a scrap metal dealer 10 miles across the county border, thieves will just take it there."

Chief Constable Adrian Lee also backed calls for a legal crackdown on cash deals for scrap metal.

Council will not rule out sale of land

OPPONENTS to plans to build more than 1,000 houses on the edge of Northampton have said they feel 'let down' after councillors refused to back a resolution saying they would not sell the council-owned land.

In October, officials at Daventry District Council approved plans to build 1,050 houses on Buckton Fields in Brampton Lane, despite major opposition from people who live in Whitehills, Kingsthorpe and Boughton.

It later emerged that Northamptonshire County Council owns two-thirds of the 123 acre greenfield site and during a meeting of the authority last week, the Liberal Democrat opposition group tabled a motion calling on the Conservative leaders of the council to publicly confirm they would not sell the land in the face of public opposition.

Councillor Sally Beardsworth (Lib Dem, Kingsthorpe) said: "If the sale goes ahead, it will be the end of that area, it will be an absolute disaster."

The chairman of the Whitehills and Spring Park Residents' Association (WASPRA), Patrick Cross, added: "We don't want development on Buckton Fields because of the traffic chaos it will cause. The land should remain green."

But the Conservative leaders refused to confirm they would not sell the land. Instead they said they would only consider selling it "when there are assurances that adequate local and strategic infrastructure will be put in place".

Cabinet member, Councillor Andrew Langley (Con, Irthlingborough) said: "We've nothing to hide, no deal has been signed. We will not sell the land without ensuring adequate infrastructure."

But when the leaders of the council were asked to include the fact the north-west bypass must be built before any houses in an official resolution, they refused.

Review on age limit for taxi vehicles

PEOPLE living and working in Northampton are being asked for their views on whether the borough council should impose an age limit on vehicles used as taxis.

About half of the country's local authorities impose an age limit, but in Northampton there is only a requirement that Hackney carriages (black cabs) must be less than three years old when they are first licensed. There is no upper age limit.

There is also no lower or upper age limit on private hire vehicles.

As well as consulting on whether to adopt an age policy common to all taxis, the council will be asking for views on whether to increase the minimum engine capacity of private hire vehicles from 1400cc to 1600cc, and if certain vehicles should be exempt.

The consultation ends at noon on February 29, with a final decision from the licensing committee due in May. Anyone wanting to contribute can access a questionnaire online at www.northampton.gov.uk/taxiconsultation or call 01604 838968.

The Whitehills Pub in Whitehills Way, Northampton has relaunched with a new menu and the investment by owners Spirit Pub Company has created 30 new jobs for residents.

Whitehills general manager, John O'Donnell, said: "It was an honour to welcome the rugby team down to our great new pub. We know the lads love a good steak with a pint and with our improved beverage offer and a new BBQ themed menu, it's fitting they should be our VIPs."

He added: "We had an overwhelming response to our recruitment campaign before we closed and the calibre of applicants has been extremely high."

"We've been able to create a team of bright and enthusiastic individuals and we look forward to working together to make The Whitehills a flaming success."

The pub now boasts an authentic chargrill at the heart of its kitchen and offers a new menu of dishes served on a skillet.

Councillor in Cornwall quits role

A COUNTY councillor who moved from Northamptonshire to Cornwall three months ago, has finally announced her decision to stand down.

Councillor Rosemary Bromwich (Con, Towcester) sold her £700,000 home in Litchborough, south Northamptonshire, in September and moved to a £611,000 property 240 miles away, near Launceston.

Despite repeated calls for her to stand down from her seat on Northamptonshire County Council and give up her annual allowance of £7,068, she had refused, insisting she could still represent the people of Towcester from Cornwall.

But as the pressure reached its peak last week, she announced her resignation in a letter to the council's leader, Councillor Jim Harker (Con, Kettering Rural).

She said: "It has been suggested that I can no longer properly discharge my obligations to my constituents. I believe that such suggestions are ill founded and in the main inspired by political opportunism. Since moving to Cornwall in September, and with the aid of modern electronic communications, I have fully represented the interests of a number of individuals and groups. I also believe that I would be able to continue doing so for the remainder of our term.

"However it would seem that my continued presence on the council is now set to become a matter of controversy. This is not the place in which I would wish to be nor would I wish to be the cause of any difficulties for the administration."

Councillor Bromwich will stand down at the end of this month. A by-election for her seat will be held in the new year. It will coincide with a vote which was due to be held to elect a new member of South Northamptonshire Council for Towcester.

Golfer makes final three for BBC award

A NORTHAMPTON student has been shortlisted as one of the final three contenders for the prestigious BBC Young Sports Personality of the Year award.

Golfing sensation Lauren Taylor, aged 17, who is a second year student at Moulton College's golf academy, has been shortlisted as one of three finalists for the award, as she looks to follow in the footsteps of previous winners including Wayne Rooney, Andy Murray and Theo Walcott.

Lauren, who plays golf at Woburn Golf Club and Northamptonshire County Golf Club, in Church Brampton, won this year's Ladies' British Open Amateur Championship at Royal Portrush, becoming the youngest ever winner, breaking a 112-year record.

She went on to play against professionals in the Women's British Open at Carnoustie, scoring two credible rounds of 74. In addition, Lauren was selected to be part of the European Team that drew 12-12 with the USA at the 2011 Junior Solheim Cup.

Ian Poulter, Ryder Cup player and world number 25 golfer, paid tribute to her. He said: "I first met Lauren and saw her play this year at the IJP Invitational, a junior golf tournament that I host at Woburn Golf Club."

"She is not only a great golfer, who in fact won the tournament that day, but an extremely well rounded young woman."

The other contenders for the award are cyclist Lucy Garner, became the Junior Road Race World Champion this year in Copenhagen, as well as Eleanor Simmonds, the paralympic swimmer who won four medals at the IPC European Swimming Championships, in Berlin.

The judging panel is chaired by BBC's John Inverdale, who said: "This is the strongest field we've ever had for this award, it was an extremely tough decision to shorten the list down to three."

The winner will be announced at the BBC Sports Personality of the Year 2011, which will be live on BBC1, on December, 22.

Inspectors' fears over academy bid

A SCHOOL faces a fresh battle in its quest to become an academy after an Ofsted inspection revealed a further fall in standards.

Daventry's William Parker School has been given a notice to improve by an inspection report set to be published this week.

The school is currently working towards becoming an academy, but must now improve its Ofsted grading at its next inspection, due in 12 to 18 months.

Inspectors visited the school at the start of November, just four weeks after an interim super-head - Krysia Butwilowska - was drafted in after the latest in a series of disappointing GCSE exam results.

In September, at the start of the academic year, the school's headteacher Jason Brook announced he would be stepping aside while problems at the school were addressed.

Mrs Butwilowska said: "It seemed like the inspectors had arrived with the idea that we should be a special measures school.

"But when they looked around and discovered what we were already doing to tackle the problems, they agreed we are doing the right things.

"Although it was a bit stress-

William Parker School in Daventry has put its plans for academy status on hold after Ofsted inspectors gave it a "notice to improve"

ful when Ofsted said they were coming, I'm glad they did do an inspection at that point. It's given us a mandate for change."

Despite the report hailing the "green shoots of recovery" at the school however, the grading means William Parker cannot become an academy until it improves.

County women to carry the torch

TWO Daventry women will be among 6,800 torchbearers representing the UK at the Olympics next year.

University student Rachel Nafzger and charity founder Kristin Hallenga, aged 26, chosen separately, received their conditional offers to take part in the 70-day Olympic Torch relay next summer.

Volunteering champion Rachel Nafzger, from Daventry, was nominated through Coca-Cola's public nomination campaign for her community work, both in Northamptonshire and in Plymouth where she attends university.

The student was praised by her Student's Union as a 'hugely positive role model' for not allowing her disability from stopping her to achieve.

Rachel said: "It is such a special honour and, given the number of people who were nominated, I feel very lucky indeed. I hope that my story encourages others to find ways to get involved with their local community and that people will come out and support me along the way."

Kristin, who was recently hailed Ultimate Campaigner in the Cosmopolitan Ultimate Women of the Year Awards, launched CoppaFeel after being diagnosed with breast cancer at 23 years old by doctors who first dismissed her symptoms.

The University of Northampton graduate battles the disease whilst running a successful nationwide charity urging young men and women to 'get to know their boobs'.

The final Torchbearer team will be revealed in March following security checks.

Flu jab uptake increase

UPTAKE of the free flu jab among pensioners is up by more than 10 per cent in Northamptonshire but many younger people are still ignoring calls for the potentially vital inoculation.

At the end of October 2010, only 44 per cent of over-65s had been vaccinated by their GP against the prevailing strains of the influenza virus. This year NHS Northamptonshire has revealed the figure is 55 per cent, with some practices reporting figures as high as 70 per cent.

However, although the percentage of at-risk people aged under-65 has increased from 24 per cent to 31 per cent, GPs are still worried about the low numbers.

Tributes paid after former publican Jack dies, aged 91

"Jack" Clifton has a final pint before retiring from The Golden Horse in 1989, and pictured (inset) in his later years

A FORMER publican, who was a licensee in Northampton for nearly 30 years has died, aged 91.

Great-grandfather John Clifton passed away at Northampton General Hospital last Monday.

Known as "Jack" to his friends, Mr Clifton was licensee at The Golden Horse pub in Far Cotton and at The Bakers Arms in Bugbrooke for a total of 27 years.

Born and brought up in Duston, his first job was at the former Northampton Brewery Company (NBC) on the site of the current Carlsberg factory.

In his younger days he was an accomplished sportsman, playing for both the brewery and Delapre Cricket Club, once taking all 10 wickets for only 15 runs against the borough police.

After leaving the brewery, Mr Clifton became publican at The Sun Inn in Hardingstone, also being elected general secretary of the Northamptonshire Licensed Victuallers Association.

Many local publicans benefited from his help and advice during his time in the role, and he was active in social and charity events, including the provision of guide rails for the gardens of Darsdale Blind Home in Raunds.

Mr Clifton, and his wife Peggy, took over The Golden Horse in Southampton Road, in 1954, and became well-known among members of the local community over the next two decades.

After moving to The Bakers Arms in Bugbrooke for a few years, they returned to Far Cotton in 1981 for their retirement.

Mr Clifton was carer for his wife for several years until her death in 2008, after which he continued to live in the area, gardening, spending time with his great-grandchildren, and attending the local railway and social clubs.

His son, Peter, said his father was a born publican. He said: "My mother was outgoing and loved company. She wouldn't go anywhere she couldn't see or hear people. They both generally liked being with and meeting people. My father was a community man. He was part of the community and everyone knew him."

Mr Clifton leaves his son, two grandsons, and three great-grandchildren.

His funeral was at Milton Crematorium yesterday.

Passionate saints fans taking part in the University of Bath experiment

Fans most passionate

SAINTS supporters may still be smarting after the recent defeat on the pitch to bitter rivals Leicester Tigers but they can at least take comfort in knowing they won the battle off the pitch.

The two sets of supporters went head-to-head in a battle in the stands to scientifically find out which of the two East Midlands rugby rivals have the most passionate fans.

And despite seeing a last-gasp Tigers try break Saints' hearts, the Northamptonians have now officially been crowned as the most passionate fans in the region.

As part of a season-long project being run by Aviva, a research team from the University of Bath undertook a variety of experiments on a set of 13 fans from each club during the game.

The supporters were strapped up to heart monitors and had their hormone release measured through saliva levels during 80 minutes of action. The data was then entered into an "equation for passion".

And the final result, which saw Saints fans triumph over their counterparts in the loyalty and physiology departments, saw Northampton fans win 156-148.

A Saints spokesman said: "It was a game that pretty much had everything in it so it is not a surprise the fans got very involved.

"There were plenty of highs and lows and for a while it looked like we would win the game only to have to snatched out of our hands."

Hospital admits risk of low morale among staff following death stats

BOSSES at Northampton General Hospital have admitted there is a risk of low staff morale because of the impact of negative mortality figures.

The Dr Foster organisation released its controversial calculations last month that appeared to show there were more deaths than their should be at NGH in a 12-month period.

Hospital chiefs have since explained that actual numbers of deaths are lower than anywhere in the East Midlands, but that the Dr Foster calculations produce an artificially low figure of predicted deaths, making the figures seem alarmingly high.

However, the Dr Foster figures have been widely reported, and Dr Sonia Swart, the NGH medical director, said in the latest trust board papers she was concerned about the effect on the hospital.

She said: "There is a risk of poor staff morale relating to failure to deliver high quality care and poor record keeping and coding will only accentuate this problem and make it difficult to ensure that staff understand exactly what their role in improving care is."

A possible reason for low mortality predictions is the precise logging of medical information and Dr Swart said that is now being addressed.

Son of soldier tracks down war medals

A MAN from Northampton found his father's war medals 45 years after they were sold by the ex-soldier to help look after his family ... at an auction house in Australia.

Corporal Leslie Jaynes was living in Henry Street, Northampton town centre, in 1944 when he was posted to Anzio in Italy where he won the Military Medal for taking charge of a party of soldiers after a devastating mine blast despite being badly injured himself.

However, in the 1960s, with little money and a wife and nine children to feed, he decided to sell the bravery medal along with five more campaign medals, telling his children they were in Abington Park Museum.

In later years, one of his sons, Steve, 56, from Brixworth, having discovered the true story from his mum, was persuaded to search for them by a neighbour who is a serving soldier.

But, to his surprise, he found them on the other side of the world.

He said: "Chip, who's a staff sergeant, had persuaded me to have a look on the internet but I hadn't done anything about it. I was watching the Antiques Roadshow – it was the week before Remembrance Sunday – and a set of medals almost identical to my dad's, from the Italy Cross to the Military Medal, came on the screen.

"I realised they weren't his but it made me do an internet search based on what I'd seen and I found them almost straight away.

"They had been sold a few years ago and for some reason they were still prominently on an auction website but in Sydney, Australia."

Mr Jaynes excitedly rang Sydney in the middle of the night UK time, and managed to speak to the owner of the auction house. He was able to pass on Mr Jayne's details to Australian militaria auctioneers, I S Wright who amazingly still had the full set of medals.

After being told it would cost £2,300 to buy them back, largely because of the story behind the Military Medal, Steve hesitated but soon had second thoughts.

He said: "Chip and a few other people said I would be mad not to get them back having come across them like this and after so long and they were absolutely right.

"My dad loved talking about his service and we are so proud of what he did. If the shrapnel that hit him had pierced him or he hadn't acted in the way he did, I probably wouldn't be here.

"My mum is 91 and in a nursing home and I took them to her last weekend and she was in tears and she kept saying: 'Why did he do it?'."

"But we're all so pleased they're back where they belong now after all this time, with his family."

Mystery bidders for troubled football club

TOWN leaders and supporters are backing two mystery bidders for Kettering Town in the hope they will breathe fresh life into the troubled football club.

The club is in a fight for survival after chairman Imraan Ladak put it up for sale and said he was no longer willing to supplement players' wages.

With players leaving, manager Mark Stimson, right, now has just 13 squad members to pick from.

Town figures and fans expressed sadness over the club's recent demise off and on the field but hoped for a fresh start under new ownership.

Kettering Council leader, Russell Roberts, said: "Kettering Town is a football club which has been going for a very long time and it is always upsetting when any club finds itself in difficulty.

"I do hope someone comes along and breathes fresh life into the club to provide the town with a team it can be proud of.

"I'm happy to hear a couple of people are showing interest in buying the club - people should applaud that and get behind them."

Police chief in county crime rise fear

A SENIOR police chief has warned spending cuts and a continuing economic downturn were likely to lead to increased crime across the county.

Northamptonshire Police Authority heard anti-social behaviour in the county was currently at an all-time low, with reports of nuisance behaviour down by 22 per cent. It means there has been almost 8,000 fewer recorded incidents of anti-social behaviour this year compared to last year.

Crime has also continued to fall across the county, despite a recent spike in vehicle crimes and robbery.

However, Martin Jelley, Assistant Chief Constable at Northamptonshire Police, warned it would be hard to maintain the figures as the number of police officers and PCSOs, who lead the fight against anti-social yobs, started to fall.

Police have said 25 PCSOs were expected to leave the force in the next four years to save money. Northamptonshire County Council also revealed it was proposing to cut its £100,000-a-year funding for community officers.

Addressing levels of anti-social behaviour, Mr Jelley told the police authority: "All sectors are showing reductions, right across the county. It is testament to the work of the Safety Community Teams and our PCSOs, who lead the work. But there is also a slight concern over the next year or so as their numbers are squeezed."

Northamptonshire has seen the total number of recorded crime fall by around a quarter over the past five years, with officers leading the fight against burglars, drug dealers and car thieves.

Mr Jelley paid tribute to officers for keeping crime levels down despite the economic uncertainty, but warned the force faced greater challenges if the economy did not pick up.

He said: "All of this needs to be put in the context we are working in. The country is in a difficult place financially and history tells us during recessions crime increases and it is going to be increasingly difficult next year."

"The national trend tells us that crime is increasing. I think the picture here at the minute is quite positive but definitely things are getting more challenging as we move forward."

Sea Cadets bid to improve facilities

THE SEA cadets in Northampton could soon have an improved headquarters.

Plans have been submitted to Northampton Borough Council to carry out improvement works at the organisation's current base at Becket's Park in the town centre.

The work would see new toilets and changing facilities created at the cadets' base as well as improved training rooms and a new building to store canoes.

Documents submitted to the council by the organisation said: "The aim is to provide future cadets with superior accommodation which will enable the unit to provide suitable training accommodation for activities.

"The cadets wish to construct a well-designed headquarters building which provides better accommodation more suited to the needs of the 21st century."

The Sea Cadets have been based at Becket's Park since 1951.

They use their current building in the park three evenings a week and at weekends.

Schools also use the building alongside the organisation.

The Sea Cadets currently have 126 members who range in age from 10 to 18. There are also 35 unpaid volunteers between the ages of 18 and 86.

Plans for the improvement of the group's current headquarters were submitted to Northampton Borough Council earlier this month.

They will now be considered by officials from the planning department at the Guildhall before being put before the council's planning committee.

It is expected that the plans will be put before the planning committee by the end of January next year, when a final decision will be made on whether or not the development should be allowed to go ahead.

Northampton Sea Cadets would have new, improved facilities at Becket's Park under new plans submitted to the borough council

The films to see this Christmas...

NEW YEAR'S EVE (12A)

A starry cast of familiar faces hope to be struck by Cupid's arrow before the clock strikes midnight in Times Square in New York. Randy (Ashton Kutcher) is stuck in an elevator with a beautiful stranger (Lea Michele), while Paul (Zac Efron) agrees to help record company secretary Ingrid (Michelle Pfeiffer) achieve all of her resolutions in exchange for tickets to the biggest party of the year. Elsewhere in the city, Tess (Jessica Biel) prepares to give birth, businessman Sam (Josh Duhamel) searches for his soul mate, and terminally ill Stan (Robert De Niro) clings onto life under the care of nurse Aimee (Halle Berry).

Rating: Two stars

A VERY HAROLD & KUMAR 3D CHRISTMAS (18)

Harold (John Cho) has lost touch with his buddy Kumar (Kal Penn) and has turned his life around by ditching the reefer, clambering up the corporate ladder and marrying Maria (Paula Garcés). Their attempts to get her pregnant on Christmas Eve are interrupted by the arrival of Maria's father Carlos (Danny Trejo) and the entire Perez clan carrying a 12-foot Douglas fir tree that the formidable patriarch has been growing for the past eight years. Fate conspires to reunite the estranged buddies and a spark from Kumar's discarded marijuana joint sets the beloved Christmas tree alight. Determined to impress Carlos, Harold heads into the night in search of a replacement fir with Kumar, buddy Todd (Thomas Lennon), teenager Adrian (Amir Blumenfeld) and Todd's infant daughter in tow. As midnight approaches, when the Perezs are due to return from Christmas mass, they cross paths with an old acquaintance, actor Neil Patrick Harris (playing himself), who might be able to solve the tree dilemma.

Rating: Three stars

The cat's whiskers

PUSS IN BOOTS 3D (U)

The story begins with the young Puss (voiced by Antonio Banderas) being abandoned at an orphanage where kind Imelda (Constance Marie) raises the kitten as her own.

Initially picked on by the boys, Puss learns to fight to survive and he helps protect fellow outcast Humpty Alexander Dumpty (Zach Galifianakis).

Many years later, the surrogate brothers join forces with sexy pickpocket Kitty Softpaws (Salma Hayek) to steal magic beans currently in the possession of murderous outlaws Jack (Billy Bob Thornton) and Jill (Amy Sedaris). These beans are rumoured to grow a beanstalk that leads to the giant's castle and the greatest treasure of all: the Golden Goose.

However, old rivalries between Puss and Humpty jeopardise the daring enterprise.

Band set to play iconic album in full

STEELEYE Span will revisit one of their most iconic albums, Now We Are Six, at The Castle theatre in Wellingborough tonight. Playing as a six piece for the first time in many years, the band will play the 1974 album in its entirety to open the show.

With a career that has taken in six decades, Steeleye Span are not just a legendary name in British music but also a link to the classic days of rock and folk music.

Contemporaries of the likes of Led Zeppelin and Fairport Convention, they have gone on to take the genre from small clubs and festivals to the top of charts and on international tours.

To celebrate this tour, fans will be able to get their hands on Now We Are Six Revisited which contains a live version of the album and a collection of classics, rarities and audience favourites.

Steeleye Span play The Castle tonight.

ROADTEST: Honda Civic 2.2 i-DTEC EX

REVIEW BY IAN DONALDSON

A far more civil affair

GOOD for Honda, letting me drive an old-style Civic on the same indifferent Spanish roads it had chosen to launch the new one, being delivered to eager owners from early 2012. Mostly this doesn't happen; perhaps because the car maker is worried its new baby won't live up to its new star billing.

Honda had more confidence, after listening to owners of the old, big selling (and Swindon-built) Civic, who were mostly happy about their cars but could suggest several avenues for improvement.

There were the obvious ones, applicable to every new model anywhere; make it sip less fuel and emit fewer nasty emissions from its exhaust.

Then there were the changes aimed directly at the Civic; smooth out the ride, quieten the engines and make the interior feel more upmarket.

Buyers already enjoyed their Civic's distinctive style, inside and out and admired the way clever design had unleashed more space for people and luggage than you'd ever imagine from the car's modest dimensions.

So the new one is clearly a thorough reworking of the old to look at, this time a bit more squared off, a little lower and wider and a touch longer too. The rear window is now gently reworked with a repositioned bar splitting the two pieces of glass, greatly improving rearward vision, and a wiper now means you can see behind in the rain. The lower section is now heated too.

Inside, softer surfaces and a bit less glitz around the instruments make the new Civic feel like a car from the class above, and now up there with the fear-some opposition provided by the likes of the Golf and Focus.

Under the bonnet sit usefully improved versions of the old engines; 1.4 and 1.8 litre petrol and a 2.2 litre diesel. A smaller 1.6 diesel is due late in 2012 and will allow Honda, belatedly, to attack the company car market, mostly ruled out at present because the current diesel is too big.

And so to the drive: will the newcomer drive like a new generation Civic, despite using some (unseen) parts of the old one, if reworked in detail for their new application?

The short answer is yes. Driven back to back, the old car felt loud and hard riding by comparison. The difference was surprising, to say the least, considering how the two cars' on-paper descriptions are so similar.

Driven first was the 1.8 litre petrol, which needed revving up anything approaching a Spanish motorway incline to maintain momentum, although a gear-change made slicker this time made progress less of a bind.

But the Civic to choose, if you can justify its extra cost, has to be the diesel version.

With twice the pulling power of the petrol model it shrugged off the hills in fifth and loped along the uncrowded motorways in sixth gear with a gentle hum from up front.

Driven with similar verve, the petrol car gave me 39mpg, the diesel managed a more impressive 50mpg. Case proved, I'd say. If the extra £2,100 the diesel costs over the equivalent petrol model can be made to make sense for your motoring budget, that is.

Prices start at £16,495 for the slow selling 1.4 litre petrol Civic and top out at an airy £26,595 for the bells and whistles diesel EX GT.

PREPARING YOUR CAR FOR WINTER - PREVENTION IS CHEAPER THAN THE CURE
Just a few simple checks would go along way to prevent break downs especially in winter. The frustrating thing for many drivers stranded by the roadside is that the breakdown shouldn't have happened - the motoring associations reckon that around half of their call outs could be avoided by regular servicing. In addition a specific winter service check should ensure that vehicles are in good mechanical and electrical condition to face what ever the season might bring. Basic checkpoints ideally would include everything from lights, tyres, screen wash to battery and starter motor.

GETTING HIS MESSAGE ACROSS – Cobblers striker Adebayo Akinfenwa celebrated scoring the 100th league goal of his career in Saturday's 1-1 draw with Crewe Alexandra with a cheeky dig at any detractors he may have. Bayo has always been a target for away fans' banter for his size, but as his T-shirt says, he can laugh off any suggestions that he's not up to the task of being a professional footballer.

Boss Aidy backing Robinson to shine

AIDY BOOTHROYD is backing miss-firing frontman Jake Robinson to finally find his shooting boots.

And the Cobblers boss even believes the former Shrewsbury Town man is a player that can ply his trade at a higher level - providing he starts to believe in himself.

Robinson arrived at Sixfields in the summer as one of then manager Gary Johnson's marquee signings.

The diminutive frontman came with a big reputation having scored goals to help both the Shrews and Torquay United - where he was on loan in the second half of the campaign - to the league two play-offs last season.

In all, Robinson notched 16 goals last term - including twice in the Shrews' 3-1 win over Ian Sampson's Cobblers at the New Meadow - but, worryingly, has now failed to find the target for nine months.

His most recent goal was for Torquay at Macclesfield on March 19, and he has failed to hit the net in 32 appearances since then.

His spell at Sixfields has seen him in and out of the side, and although chances have been few and far between in a struggling side, when they have materialised, Robinson has fluffed his lines.

Robinson was even made available for transfer in Johnson's final days at the club.

But Boothroyd has seen enough in his two weeks with the squad to suggest that Robinson's barren spell won't go on, and hinted he is going to be a major part of his plans for the Cobblers.

"I think Jake is a terrific player and if he thought he was as good as I think he is then he wouldn't be at this club," said Boothroyd.

"He's lively, he's got a goal in him, he's great coming off the left and he can play up front in a two.

"I just see really good things coming from him.

"I can't point the finger and say he didn't give his all on Saturday and that's all I can ask for."

The Cobblers will be aiming to claim their first npower League Two win since October 1 when they travel to Oxford United on Saturday (ko 3pm).

■ BAS SAVAGE has had his contract terminated, and has left the Cobblers. The striker signed on at Sixfields in August, but failed to find the target in 10 appearances for the club.

Mallinder defends Wood over cards

SAINTS boss Jim Mallinder has dismissed any notion that two cards in a week has wrecked Tom Wood's hopes of captaining England.

The Saints flanker has been tipped as a possible candidate to lead his country ever since Lewis Moody announced his retirement, despite the Saints forward appearing in just two of the games at the World Cup.

And on Saturday in the Heineken Cup defeat at Castres, Wood suffered a 62nd-minute yellow card which came hot on the heels of his red card for being involved in a mass brawl at Leicester.

Mallinder, though, spiked any thoughts that Wood has a disciplinary problem that caretaker England boss Stuart Lancaster should be aware of.

Mallinder said: "If anybody has seen the way Tom is playing, he is putting his hand up to play for England if not captain them.

"The discipline is not an issue. "The yellow card could have happened to anybody in a maul like that, I don't think you should take that into consideration.

"He plays and sets a tremendous example, but so does (Saints skipper) Dylan Hartley. We have some good leaders in our team and England will choose the captain they want."

Mallinder and Saints were more than a little mystified by Wood's yellow card in France, and it proved a decisive moment as Castres pulled away to win 41-22.

Wood was the only experienced head left in Saints' back-row and after conceding 40 points for the first time since a 40-5 defeat at London Irish in November 2006 in a season when Northampton were relegated, Mallinder admitted the injuries and suspensions in that area hurt.

Phil Dowson will again be suspended for the return leg on Saturday, while Calum Clark and Roger Wilson are injured.

Mallinder said: "You don't want to lose two of your senior back-rowers, in Dowson and Clark.

"We have lost them and Roger Wilson, we have lost three of our most experienced back row and that is always going to hurt."

It was left to Academy back-rower Ben Nutley and American Samu Manoa to fill in and, given they were up against the third best team in the French Top 14, Mallinder was full of praise for their efforts.

"I thought the back row played well," said Mallinder.

"There was some unbelievable tackling from Samu, some real big hits and I thought Nutley got around the field well and worked really hard.

"Young Jamie Elliott had a great game as well.

"You have got to look at the positives and if you look at the end of the game at the number of young English lads coming through from the Academy who were on the pitch, to have experienced a Heineken Cup can only be good in the long run."

Saints are back in Heineken Cup action this Sunday when the enter-tain Castres (ko 3pm).
